Part of Protective Services' mission is to provide a deterrent to rural crime. One way that this can happen is to make property and sites less attractive to people who want to commit crime. In order to make Wheatland County's grader shops less attractive to crime, CPTED audits were conducted over a period of three months on all of the facilities. The principles of CPTED are, Natural Access Control, Natural Surveillance, Territorial Reinforcement, and Activity Maintenance. The report outlines what was observed.
